

THIRTEEN NO HOODOO, THIS COLONEL THINKS
Col. Charles W. Combs, veteran employee of the Capitol, has somehow or other gotten hooked up with the number thirteen. Yesterday's inaugural ceremonies were the thirteenth that he has witnessed. Ever since Grant took the oath Col. Combs has been on hand at every inauguration since. Col. Combs is 82 years old and has a sprained ankle, and he doesn't like Bryan.

SLEEP IN BATH TUBS.
Did you sleep in a bath tub the other night because you were a tail-end, and couldn't get for any price a regular bed? Somebody did. But those who did made sure that the water was tightly shut off. The hotels were crowded, so bath rooms were pressed into service. Chairs, improvised cots, bundles of rugs, and several other inventions were brought forward, to accommodate the folk who arrived late.

Members of the congregation of the First Presbyterian Church on John Marshall place, sitting complacently in church on Sundays with little black disks to their ears, are trying to go to heaven by telephone.
The little appliances are acousticians made expressly for deaf people. The officers of the church have provided a means whereby the deaf man can get religion at the same price as the man with two perfectly good ears.

PATRIOTISM FIRST, PLEA OF MARSHALL
Vice President, in Inaugural Address, Calls U. S. Government Firmest of All.

With even more solemnity than that which accompanied the inauguration of President Wilson, Vice President Thomas Riley Marshall took the oath of office for a second term at the hands of Chief Justice White in the Senate Chamber yesterday.

Facing an audience of diplomats, Cabinet officers, Supreme Court justices, the entire membership of Congress, and the President himself, the Vice President made his second inaugural address.
The Vice President said:
"Custom calls for the utterance of a few words upon this occasion, otherwise I would gladly remain silent. It may not be inappropriate to express my gratitude for the little, nameless, unnumbered and oftentimes unremembered acts of courtesy and charity shown to me by the members of this body during the last four years; to express my regret over the vanishing faces of those who are leaving and to welcome those who in a few moments are to become our co-workers in the cause of constitutional freedom."
"Everywhere in America are eloquent and ardent voices proclaiming the essential elements of patriotism. He who seeks out of them all to select one clear note of love for country may fail. I conceive it to be far more important to examine myself than to cross-examine another. May I make bold to insert in the Record some elements of the creed which I have adopted in this period of retrospection and introspection. It does not embrace what I know, but holds part of what I believe."

Divinely Ordained.
"I have faith that this government of ours was divinely ordained to disclose whether men are by nature fitted or can by education be made fit for self-government; to teach Jew and Greek, bondman and free, alike, the essential equality of all men before the law and to be tender and true to humanity everywhere under all circumstances; to reveal that service is the highest reward of life. I cannot believe otherwise when I read the words and recall the sacrifices of the fathers. If ours is not the golden rule of government, then Washington wrought and Lincoln died in vain."
"I believe that the world, now advancing and now retreating, is nevertheless moving forward to a far-off divine event, wherein the tongue of Babel will again be blended in the language of a common brotherhood; and I believe that I can reach the highest ideal of my tradition and my lineage as an American—as a man, as a citizen and as a public official—when I judge my fellowmen without malice and with charity, when I worry more about my own motives and conduct and less about the motives and conduct of others."
"The time I am liable to be wholly wrong is when I know that I am absolutely right. In an individualistic republic, I am the unit of patriotism and if I keep myself keyed in unison with the music of the union, my fellowmen will catch the note and fall into time and step."
"I believe there is no finer form of government than the one under which we live and that I ought to be willing to live or to die, as God decrees, that it may not perish from off the earth through treachery within or through assault from without; and I believe that though my first right is to be a partisan, that my first duty, when the only principles on which free government can rest are being strained, is to be a patriot and to follow in a wilderness of words that clear call which bids me guard and defend the ark of our national government."

PARISH RAISES $30,000.
St. Paul's Church Making Rapid Progress in Campaign.
The campaign to raise $50,000 for St. Paul's Parish has already been more than half accomplished. The closing days of last week's campaign showed that $30,000 had been gathered in by the 230 canvassers, who are bending every effort to bring the full amount before March 22, when the campaign closes.
In charge of the canvassers have perfected plans for speeding up the collections of the remaining days. Rev. Father James E. Krug, chairman of the board of directors of the campaign, gave an encouraging talk to the canvassers.

PRESIDENT HAS BUSY DAY.
The President was up and on the job early. He arose at 8 o'clock, breakfasted in his room, where he remained busy with routine matters until 10:30, and then joined the other members of his family. After spending a few minutes with them he was ready to make the trip to the Capitol for the inaugural ceremonies.

Three Negroes Arrested As Suspected Pickpockets
Detectives Cassassa and McKenna, of New York, can pick negroes, even if they do hail from a spot where negroes are few and far between. Working yesterday at the Union Station, the policemen from New York noticed that three negroes were operating in too free a manner to suit them.
The officers, finally convinced that the negroes were pickpockets, took them into custody for investigation. The men are George Crawford, 23 years old, Rockingham, N. C.; Emanuel Vinson, 19, of Durham, N. C.; and Alex Wright, 27 years old, of Greenville, S. C.
